Ethical Duties When Leaving and Joining Law Firms

Lawyer mobility is on the rise and here to stay – so what’s your plan? Law firms must clearly understand the applicable ethical constraints and duties imposed on them when lawyers depart from their firms or when they intake new lawyers. Likewise, the lawyers leaving and joining firms must also understand their professional duties. This panel will explore the many ethical issues arising out of attorney transitions and how California’s new rules of professional conduct, and relevant ethics opinions, fit into this conversation. They will also discuss best practices for establishing policies to effectively manage these transitions and enhance client protections, including what role the firm’s partnership agreement can play in minimizing potential disruptions from attorney transitions.
