

President's Message

Advocates for Change. TMBA Family... we are halfway through the year, can you believe it? So much has happened in the world but also in the TMBA and black legal community. We are so glad that things are starting to open up and are glad that we have been able to be part of the conversation regarding vaccinations within the Black Community. After the social justice movement began last year, our community and society as a whole is in transition and needs advocates to guide this transition. Society is longing for leaders to guide the transition that our nation so desperately needs.

TMBA is glad to be "Advocates for Change." We have continued to lead through our presence in the community through education and in the community to have tough conversations! I hope that our membership is also up for the task to help us begin to bridge the gap between the public and legal system... we have some big news coming that will expand our pro bono efforts!

We have been able to host MCLE programming and get started on our plans to expand our scholarship opportunities to undergraduate, community college, and high school students in the coming months. We are excited about the second half of the year and the ability to have in-person membership meetings—look for that! We look forward to continuing to Reconnect. Reinvest. Rebuild with each of you!

Best,

Rebekah Thomas, Esq.

TMBA Law Student Ambassadors

TMBA strives to partner with law students to provide mentorship and engage and connect them with TMBA and the legal community. Each year, TMBA selects a student from each Orange County law school to actively participate and attend TMBA events and serve as a liaison for their respective schools to promote TMBA events and its mission. Each recipient will also be awarded a scholarship to use toward academic expenses. The LSAs selected showed a commitment to promoting diversity, community outreach, and leadership at their school.

We are pleased to introduce the 2021-2022 TMBA Law School Ambassadors! We will spotlight a different LSA in the coming newsletters. If you have an interest in connecting with any of the LSAs to provide further mentorship or other resources, please email info@thurgoodmarshallbarassociation.org
